Rockwell Marietta, First Mayor of City, Banker and Coal Operator, Dies

End Comes Peacefully at Home, Surrounded by Members of His Family.

GRIP WEAKENS SYSTEM

Beginning Life as Engineer, Youngest on Baltimore & Ohio Road, Mr. Marietta Rose by Rapid Strides to Wealth and Influence in Community

Rockwell Marietta, 73 years and seven days old, prominent banker and coal and coke operator of Fayette and Westmoreland counties and first mayor of Connellsville, died this morning at 3:55 o'clock at the family home, 121 East Crawford avenue.

His illness dates back to about two years ago at which time he underwent two operations in a Cambridge Springs hospital. His returned home much improved and was able to be about and look after his business interests until about six weeks ago when he contracted grip. The first two weeks he was confined to his home all the time but for the past four weeks he had been bedridden. However, he would rally at times and hopes were entertained for his recovery until Sunday morning when he suffered a relapse, gradually growing weaker. He was conscious until death and all members of his family with the exception of a grandson, Demetrius Solomon, who arrived home today from Culver Military Academy, Calver, Ind., were at his bedside when he died.

Mr. Marietta was born in Connellsville, December 5, 1849, a son of the late Joseph Keopers and Sarah Stillwagon Marietta, who were among the early settlers of Connellsville. His father was of French and his mother of German descent. His father was a stone cutter and farmer, his first world ancestor being among the earliest settlers of the American colonies. Marietta, Ohio, and Marietta, Pa., both take their names from his paternal ancestors.

Rockwell Marietta was educated in the public schools, continuing until the age of 14 years, when he began working on the railroad. At the age of 18 years he was running an engine on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, putting the Connellsville Extension on the road and running the smallest engine and years later, just to complete his record, was allowed to run the president of the company engine. In his boyhood he never saw a locomotive, and his first run in an engine's seat was in charge of the first one he ever beheld, the "George Washington" engine in that time being named and numbered. Another of his early engines was the "Harmonides," which was in coal operations on the railroad for about 13 years, then purchased a stone quarry and for four years was engaged in quarrying and contracting. He then erected the buildings and for six years operated a brewery, selling out to the Pittsburgh Brewing Company, after which he engaged in coal operations and banking. He was one of the organizers of the Title & Trust Company in 1906 and had been director and vice-president ever since its inception.

In 1904 Mr. Marietta became one of the incorporators of the Colonial National Bank and was chosen director and first vice-president. Later he resigned both offices.

His coal interests were extensive. He was president of the Connellsville Coke and Fuel Company, the Marietta Coal Company, the Wheeler Improvement Company, the Connellsville Manufacturing Mine & Supply Company and the board of trustees of the Carnegie Free Library, having been elected to that office to succeed the late Dr. J. C. McClelland, whose death occurred several years ago.

In politics Mr. Marietta was a Democrat and was prominently connected with the city's municipal affairs. When Connellsville was made a third class city he was elected its first mayor, in 1913, for a four-year term. He was president of the borough council for many years. He was a presidential elector in 1920.

A. R. Wortman, Dunbar Citizen, Reading In The Courier of the Critical Illness of Rockwell Marietta, Dies Very Suddenly

Special to The Courier.

DUNBAR, Dec. 12.—While sitting in his chair in his lately acquired home in Ferguson road, reading The Courier, Adam R. Wortman, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Dunbar, died of heart disease at 5 o'clock last evening.

Sleeping soundly Sunday night for the first time in weeks, and saying to his family Monday that he felt better than for months, he went to Dunbar in the afternoon for his mail, and told a number of his friends in Dunbar how well he felt. Reaching home at 5 in the evening he removed his overcoat, and remarking to his wife that his son was a little late getting home and that he would read The Courier until he came, he sat down in his chair. Calling to Mrs. Wortman he read that "Rockwell Marietta was sinking." Scarcely had the words left his lips when his wife noticed one of his hands drop and started to him. Before she reached his chair the other hand relaxed and the paper he had been reading fell to the floor. Seeing he was sinking she rushed to the telephone and called a physician but before she could get to his side again his spirit had departed.

Farmer and Wife Slain, Presumably By Use of an Axe

By Associated Press.

MIDDLETOWN, Ind., Dec. 12.—William Shaffer, 35 years old, a farmer, and his wife were found murdered here today. Mrs. Shaffer's head had been cut off by a sharp instrument, presumably an axe, and Shaffer's head was split wide open. The bodies were found by a group of passing farmers. Mrs. Shaffer's body was in bed while that of her husband was in the barn. A four-year-old girl, unharmed but suffering from exposure and lack of food, was unable to give any details. The couple is believed to have been dead for several days.

No motive for the crime could be learned. The condition of the house, however, indicated that robbery was the probable cause. Neighbors last saw Shaffer at work on his farm last Thursday. The party of farmers who discovered the crime went to the home for aid, their automobiles having broken down near the house.

Boy Hit by Car, Skull Fractured

Thomas Bell, seven years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tilden Bell of Trotter, is at the Cottage State Hospital suffering from a fractured skull received Monday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile on the Connellsville-Uniontown road.

The lad was returning home from school when he came with the accident. An X-ray picture was taken this morning at the hospital to determine the extent of the injury.

FATHER JANDA, MOUNT PLEASANT PRIEST, IS DEAD

Was Pastor for 14 Years of Church of Visitation and Widely Known.

ACTIVE WORKER IN WAR

Came to Church 14 Years Ago and Had Been Largely Instrumental in the Growth of the Congregation and its Activities. Built Church.

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Dec. 12.—Rev. Valerian Janda, pastor of the Church of Visitation, Walnut street, died this morning at 1:40 o'clock, after an illness extending over the greater part of a year, which, however, did not wholly incapacitate him until in recent weeks. He was 48 years old.

Rev. Janda (pronounced Yawnda) was born in Chicago October 26, 1874. He was graduated from Loyola University, Chicago, and on September 26, 1897, was ordained to the priesthood of the Roman Catholic Church in Chicago by Rt. Rev. Richard P. Quinn. His first assignment was to St. Michael's Church, Homestead, where he remained for 11 years. He came to Mount Pleasant 14 years ago and had since been pastor of the Church of Visitation.

Under the leadership of Father Janda the church here experienced remarkable growth. A parochial school was established and a commodious building erected. A large brick church was erected to replace the less modern one destroyed by fire six years ago. A home for the sisters was acquired by purchase. Of the buildings owned by the parish when Father Janda came the rector's home alone stands.

Father Janda was active during the War in the Red Cross and Liberty Loan drives. He was one of the leading four-minute speakers. He enjoyed a wide acquaintance among the non-Catholics and was held in high esteem by them.

His body will lie in state Wednesday and Wednesday night at the church. Solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated Thursday at 10 o'clock. Persons of all denominations are included in the invitation to view the body and attend the funeral service. Burial will be in Visitation Cemetery.

The occupants of the car said they did not see the train until too late to stop. The driver swerved the machine so that he did not strike the locomotive head-on. W. M. JOHN WANAMAKER, FAMOUS MERCHANT, CALLED BY DEATH

Had Been Confined to His Home in Philadelphia Since in November.

HAD HUMBLE BEGINNING

Worked in Clothing Store for $1.50 a Week While Trying to Run a Small Newspaper; Was First Paid Y. M. C. A. Secretary in the Country.

By Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12.—John Wanamaker died at his home at 4 A. M.

The world famous merchant and former postmaster general passed away at his town house. He had been confined there since early in November with a heavy cold. He was 81 years old.

John Wanamaker was one of the best known merchants in the United States and was also noted for his intimate connection with prominent movements in the social and religious worlds. He was born July 11, 1837.

After a few years of country school life, young Wanamaker grew anxious to engage himself in business of some kind or other, and obtained employment in a Philadelphia book store, where he remained until 1856, when his father moved to Indiana, taking his son with him. John remained in the West but a year, his ever returning to Philadelphia in 1857, and starting a small newspaper, entitled Everybody's Journal. But journalism was not the path that Wanamaker had mapped out for himself. While issuing his paper he was learning the clothing business, occupying a place in a store at $1.50 a week. In spite of his meagre income, his habits of industry and economy enabled him to save $100, which sum was the foundation of his fortune.

In 1859 he was appointed the first of the salaried secretaries of the Young Men's Christian Association in the United States, and was the executive officer of the Young Men's Association of Philadelphia. He invested his $100 in real estate and, by good luck, realized $2,000. With this sum he went into the clothing business for himself. He became recognized in a surprisingly short time as a prominent business man in the city, and his original and successful methods secured for him a reputation throughout the country.

Outside of his strictly business pursuits, Mr. Wanamaker's personality made itself felt in widely varying ways. He was one of the originators of the Christmas Commission and was chairman of the General Relief Committee for the Irish people in the last famine.

Public institutions which Mr. Wanamaker established included the Presbyterian Hospital of Philadelphia and the first penny savings bank. He also assisted in erecting the many Young Men's Christian Association buildings in various cities, and contributed toward college missionary institutions in India, China and Japan. At the outbreak of the World War he was one of the first to assist in the relief of the stricken Belgians, supplying two shiploads of food for the invaded country.

Early in his career Mr. Wanamaker married Miss Mary B. Brown, a sister of his original partner, who cooperated with him in much of his philanthropic work. She died in August, 1920.

The second tribute of his mercantile career was conferred upon him in 1921, to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the founding of his business. In a ceremony at Independence Hall, Philadelphia, he was presented with the freedom of the city, and later was the guest of honor at a luncheon attended by prominent men from all parts of the country. Among the tributes of that day were a gift and a message from the Emperor and Empress of Japan.

SPRINGFIELD PIKE WILL BE THROWN OPEN WEDNESDAY

The Springfield pike will be thrown open to travel tomorrow between the junction with the McCoy road and the farm of W. D. McGinnis and the top of the mountain, according to an announcement by State Highway Inspector F. M. Brady. It has been closed for several weeks while the contractor was putting down the concrete base.

The road will be closed for two weeks or longer west of the McGinnis farm while the brick wearing surface is being placed. During this time use will be made of the McCoy road, opening the way from Connellsville to Normalville.

Consolidating has been completed from the eastern terminus of the improved section at Sandy flat to the McGinnis farm. There remains a short stretch from that point to the pinnacle at North Bend but this will be fit for travel when the brick is completed to North Bend.

During the winter the contractor will place the five-foot berm or shoulder on each side and complete the drainage. But a short time next spring will be required to finish the concrete base.

Cupp Fires on Police When Surprised in Water Street Still Restaurant Man Cornered by Officers in Raid Is Overpowered and Placed Under Arrest; Several Thousand Bottles of 'Home Brew' Confiscated.

HOT WATER BOILER USED IN THE MANUFACTURE

A squad of three officers composed of Chief Murphy, Patrolman Ladden and Captain R. C. Biedose, the latter of the Baltimore & Ohio police, made the biggest liquor raid ever staged in Connellsville when they descended on Cupp's Restaurant in Water street, arrested the proprietor, H. J. Cupp, and confiscated two truckloads of liquor, some bonded, but the greater portion being "home brew."

The officers made a surprise entry and said they found Cupp in a room at the rear of the building where he manufactured the moist goods. He barred the door and when Chief Murphy demanded admittance he fired. Two shots went through the door of one room and stopped when they struck the wall. They did not endanger the officers, although fired in their direction.

The police broke down the doors with a ladder and placed Cupp under arrest. He was locked up in the police station.

Cupp will be given a hearing before Mayor C. C. Mitchell at 7 o'clock this evening. He will be charged with the unlawful manufacture and possession of intoxicating liquor.

He had a suit cleverly built into the back seat where he was arrested. It was an iron boiler similar to those used in heating water for home use and by an arrangement of pipes it made a still for the brewing of beer.

The first load of beer removed had been bottled and placed in regular style beer cases. It is estimated there were 200 of the cases or about 4,800 bottles. Some beer was found in the same section of the building as that occupied by the still. Almost 1,000 other bottles were found in an unfinished portion of the top floor.

The bottles located there had been placed in bushel baskets. There were 32 baskets and the average number in them was 30. A small quantity of bonded whiskey was also confiscated. Two high powered rifles found in the room where Cupp was captured were confiscated.

Following the Cupp raid, Chief Murphy kept his force busy and soon had Mary Vorrasi and Roale Mascia also in the toils. Each left a forfeit of $100 for hearings. Roale will be tried tonight and the other woman, requested that she be allowed until tomorrow evening.

Patsy Cucco and William Skalaia, both located on the West Side, were also victims of the police activities today. Patrolmen Frank Loudon and C. E. Hombertson made the arrests. They will also be given hearings at 7 o'clock tonight.

Preliminary Estimates For Next Year's Budget Exceed 1922 by $33,940

Increases Largely in Mayor's and Public Safety Departments.

WAGE INCREASE SOUGHT

Both Police and Firemen Solicit Increases in Pay; Mayor Asks for Increase in Force; Safety Head Lists New Fire Trucks As a Necessity.

Preliminary estimates on the city budget for 1923, submitted at the regular December meeting of Council Monday night, reached such a figure that the five members of the body stood against. As compared with the budget of $101,440 a year ago the tentative department figures reached a total of $135,380, or an increase of $33,940. But it will be adopted as it stands. That was evident from comment. It was estimated that to put over that amount would necessitate an increase of five mills in the taxes. So before the budget ordinance is adopted there will be a pruning process. Just where this will be nobody was willing to commit himself.

The estimates as submitted by the five departments compared with the 1922 budget are:

	1922	1923
Public Affairs	32,225	31,700
Accounts, Finance	17,825	17,124
Public Safety	12,840	23,161
Streets	26,950	22,254
Parks, Public Property	8,950	8,251
Miscellaneous	6,000	6,000

The proposed increases, it will be noted, are largely in the department of public affairs, of which the mayor is the head and that of public safety, presided over by Councilman, Jesse A. Cypher.

Additions to the police force, increasing the personnel to 14, from nine, are proposed by Mayor Mitchell. His aim will be to have one day and night patrolmen in the four outlying sections of the city—north, east, south and west; a desk sergeant at City Hall, night and day, and an additional motorcycle officer. An additional machine will be required, he said. The mayor also presented the requests of the members of the force for wage increases. The patrolmen are asking $135 monthly instead of $120 they are now paid. Good officers cannot be secured at the latter figure.

REAL CIRCUS PERFORMERS TO APPEAR AT COUNTRY CIRCUS

Mrs. F. K. Drill, of the Culture Club Circus Committee which will hold the circus at the State Armory Building, Connelville, December 15 and 16 announces that while a number of local performers will take part in the show, there will be some real circus performers on the program, professional artists who have been with some of the big circuses.

Mrs. Drill states that among the features arranged are: "The Wilsons," noted circus artists and impersonators, who will perform the "Sole-Floto Circus." This act, according to reports, is one of the most daring exhibitions of its kind ever seen anywhere, in fact a sensational thriller. The Wilsons equip the spectators to gasp when Miss Wilson permits her partner to hurl several big steel knives directly at her from a distance coming with terrific speed and striking deep into the heavy board against which she stands, each knife as close to her body, in fact, so close sometimes, it is said that they pierce her clothing. In addition to this very exhibition, they also present a display of sharpshooting which is said to be remarkable.

While of course, the Wilsons will be one of the big feature attractions, there will be other stunts which will move to make it a real circus. No circus is complete without clowns, so the committee has also engaged some real circus clowns, the Dan, Ducrow Trio—Mr. Ducrow is an old timer, for many years with Barnum & Bailey and later at the New York Hippodrome. This trio promises some really funny stunts.

Plans for the shows are progressing nicely and indications are that a big crowd will witness the opening performance.

An attractive collection of articles to be given as prizes, including a handsome polychrome mirror, donated by Kaufmann's, Pittsburgh; a sled, donated by Anderson-Loucks Hardware Company; doll, donated by Leche's department store; and bicycle, donated by Frederick Music Company, are displayed in the window of Crown Meat Market, Connelville.

He was a charter member of Connelville Lodge, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, and an old, established member of General Worth Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, having joined the order at the age of 21 years. During the centennial celebration in Connelville in 1896 he served as general chairman of the committee.

November 26, 1865, Mr. Marietta was married to Emily, daughter of George and Lucretia McCormick, both of whom were of Scotch descent, their people being among the early settlers of Fayette county. To the union eight children were born, seven of whom survive as follows: Harry Marietta, Mrs. William Dull, William H. Marietta, Mrs. J. Melvin Gray, Mrs. A. D. Solson and George Marietta, all of Connelville, and C. B. Marietta, of Ligonier. Roger Marietta, a son, is deceased. In addition to his widow and children Mr. Marietta is survived by one brother, Marcus Marietta, three sisters, Mrs. Samuel M. Post, Mrs. William Brookman and Mrs. John A. Gutter, all of Connelville; 19 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

In the death of Mr. Marietta Connelville has lost one of its most widely known and substantial citizens. Having spent at his life here he was known by virtually every man, woman and child and his death is keenly felt by the entire community. He was the architect of his own fortune and his life was one of energy and push, together with fair dealing and accomplishment. He always had the welfare of the city at heart and devoted his efforts and means to every way that would go to build up and develop Connelville and its business. He was a friend of the poor, giving generously to the needy and also to churches of the city. He also had a wide acquaintance throughout Fayette county.

Funeral services, the details for which have not been arranged, will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the family home, followed by interment in Hill Grove cemetery.

Mine "Cave-In" Law Of State Is Invalid
By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—By a decision of the United States Supreme Court the Kohler mine "cave-in" law, passed by the Pennsylvania Legislature after the citizens of Scranton had fought for 11 years for the prohibition law provided in a constitutional and in effect confiscatory.

The court's opinion, handed down by Justice Holmes, declares the statute had exceeded its police powers in seeking to protect the interests of owners of surface rights to property underlying with coal and that in prohibiting mining under such property under certain conditions, had deprived coal owners of valuable property rights without compensation.

In effect the decision denies to surface owners, including municipalities built over coal-bearing lands where the surface is purchased in the knowledge that the coal is to be mined from recovering damages due to caving in of worked-out entries.

Justice Brandeis dissenting declared the state had a right to prohibit mining of coal beneath the surface, and that conditions are such that the state is entitled to the Kohler act "merely prevents the owner from making a use which interferes with the paramount rights of the public."

REFORMED ORGAN IN USE

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Dec. 12.—A group of Health Scouts has been started at the Pittsburgh Street School in Scottdale, under the direction of Miss Bertine Collins of the home economics extension service, State College, and the cooperation of the teachers and parents. The children in the group are under weight for their age and height and want to build up in order that they will have more resistance and energy. They are: Doris Asper, Dorothy DeWitt, Dorothy House, Sara Ringler, Emma Jeffers, Josephine Palmer, Irene Otto, Ralph Springer, Howard Webb, J. R. Dickerhoff, Woodrow Hapler, Billie Sloan, Paul Albright and Richard Darsie.

At each recess the children buy a half pint of milk. They are weighed and stars for rewards are given on the weight charts each week. Then a health lesson is given. Last week the lesson was on "The Food Value of Milk" and it was given in seven of the rooms. Milk tables were used to make the work interesting to the children. Several other children are also buying milk at school. The opportunity is soon to be open for children in the other schools to purchase milk.

Organ Dedicated.
On Sunday morning the new organ of Trinity Reformed Church was dedicated. Mrs. W. J. Moynier presided at the organ. The first number was the doxology and then followed the regular church service. An anthem by the choir, "Solo" by Mrs. G. F. Kelly, a quart by Mrs. G. F. Kelly and Ralph Sherrick; then followed the dedicatory services in which J. M. Zimmers, an elder in the church, represented the trustees and presented the organ to the congregation. Rev. E. E. Lambach accepted the organ for the congregation. This was followed by a responsive reading between the pastor and the congregation and then followed the formal dedication in which the organ was presented by Rev. Lambach.

Rev. Lambach preached the dedicatory sermon. The service closed with the usual prayer and hymn.

One of the largest, most appreciative musical audiences ever gathered in Scottdale was at the Reformed Church Sunday afternoon for the organ recital given by Henry Charles Gerwig and violin by Miss Margaret Krichbaum.

Stabbed by Neuritis

Many people suffer attacks by this arch-foe, commonly called "nerve inflammation." The first warning is usually a sharp, stabbing pain, which may "come and go" or hurt constantly. You may feel it in the shoulder, neck, forearm, small of the back, or down the thigh and leg to the heel. It is sometimes mistaken for sciatica, rheumatism or neuralgia, which often end in neuritis. The doctor where you have nerve pains or what caused them, you can get quick relief without using narcotics or poison. Just apply Tylenol over the part that hurts, and in a few minutes the pain will be gone. Tylenol is absorbed through the pores of the skin. It has a soothing, healing effect upon the diseased nerve, gradually helping to restore them to healthy condition. Don't suffer any longer. Price 31¢ at LaSalle Drug Co., 7200 Mt. Co. Mfg. Chemists, 409 Sutter street, San Francisco.—Advertisement.

a spirit of hate and lawlessness and from her mother the warm, romantic blood of the Spaniard. As mistress of her late father's opium smuggling ship, she roams the seas with a rag doll, a monkey and a goat as her principal companions and rules the vessel with a ferocity that is usually balanced by abundant good humor. Captain Danny, who had been first mate to the girl's father; a Chinese cook and a rough, unscrupulous Swede are the principal figures of her life on the ship. In the hold of the vessel is a stowaway. He falls in love with the girl. Revenue officers capture the ship. The girl escapes with the cook and the Swede mate. Later, the paths of the girl and the man who first gained her love and admiration and whom she believes to have treacherously deceived her cross again. From this point the story progresses through most absorbing sequences which finally terminate the conflict between love and hate which has been paying in the girl's soul and under a pursuit across the Pacific reunite her and the man who first aroused her love.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, "Hurricane's Gal" featuring Dorothy Phillips, will be shown.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE BROADWAY MADONNA," the leading picture today at this theatre, presents Dorothy Revier and other favorite screen stars in interesting roles. A woman goes to foolhardy limits to obey the dictates of her husband is the central figure in this moving drama of the fastest and most furious metropolis, on earth. The woman is played with rare skill by the beautiful Dorothy Revier, whose striking resemblance of Gloria Swanson is not the least interesting feature of her work. F. B. O. is distributing the production. Is a woman justified in going to criminal lengths in her efforts to be loyal to her husband? Is she justified in allowing herself to be used as her husband's pawn in a questionable scheme to prey upon a wealthy and impressionable young man? These vital questions, which are interesting hundreds of thousands of women throughout the world, are answered with a smashing effect by "The Broadway Madonna," a stirring picture of life in New York. Mystery and red-blooded drama form the basis of this moving story.

Wednesday and Thursday, "The Hound of the Baskervilles," will be the leading attraction.

THE ORCHARD.

"FASCINATION," a Metro picture, presenting Mae Murray in a splendid role, is a big attraction today and tomorrow at this theatre. In "Fascination," the famous Metro star turns to Spain for her background. She appears as the daughter of a Spanish father and an American mother. The combination of the Latin temperament and the Anglo-Saxon gives Miss Murray a wonderful opportunity to do remarkably acting as Dolores De Luna. She portrays the part of a young girl who, revolting against the chaperonage of an aunt, decides to give herself a holiday. Disguising herself in a black wig and holiday garb she attends a bull fight against the wishes of her aunt. At the bull fight she meets Curfiu, a handsome young torero, who fascinates her immediately. This fascination that supplies the main motive for the play, for under its spell Dolores becomes involved in a series of breath-taking incidents.

The scenes are elaborate and lavish. All maintain the romantic flavor of Spain, and are complete in technical detail.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Douglas Fairbanks will be seen in "The Three Musketeers."

ROCKWELL MARLETTA

Rockwell Marletta was one of Connelville's most prominent, most widely known and most useful citizens—distinctions which were his by the right of what he was as a man and what he did for and in behalf of his home town, its people and its institutions.

Possessed of a staidness and ruggedness of character which were commonly the traits of men of earlier generations, he stood out among his fellow citizens in those essentials of leadership which attract and retain the loyalty of friends and the admiration of those who suffered from him as he meant and methods by which he accomplished things.

Having once decided upon a course of conduct or policy in his business, political or public relations he pursued it with a determination and singleness of purpose that never admitted the possibility of defeat or failure. Frank and outspoken in his views and opinions to persons or questions of his attitude upon any question of conviction and principle to the old-fashioned notions of honor, Mr. Marletta's word had all the force and effect of a bond and was accepted as such by his associates.

With an intense pride in the place of his birth, and which throughout his lifetime was his home, Mr. Marletta counted it a large part of his duty to make an active part in the promotion of everything that served to draw attention to Connelville as a progressive and wide awake city. He was always one of the most liberal contributors to funds raised for public functions of various kinds and took the keenest delight in helping to make such affairs a conspicuous success.

An apparent stiffness in speech and manner, merely concealed a cordiality and heartiness none knew better nor appreciated more than those brought in closest contact with him. Generous to a fault, any reasonable appeal, whether from individuals, causes or institutions, found the distance from his heart to his purse to be very short and quickly traversed.

For a man to have exemplified in his life these and other qualities, and to have served his home community in so many capacities and always with fidelity, makes of him a citizen justly entitled to the prominence attained by Mr. Marletta and the confidence he enjoyed in an exceptional degree. His removal from the scene of his activities becomes more than the much lamented closing of the life of a most useful citizen—it assumes the nature and proportions of a personal bereavement to the hundreds who knew him and valued his friendship so highly.

With a deep sense of the loss the community has sustained the tenderest and sincerest sympathy goes out today to the members of the sadly stricken household in which the intimacies of long sustained, sacred and happy relationships make the grief most poignant.

Why Clemenceau Don't Trust the League?

The impressions of some people who are ardent advocates of the League of Nations, that Premier Clemenceau during his addresses in this country has favored the United States becoming a member, is not in accord with the facts. The distinguished French patriot has declared that his utterances on this subject have been misconstrued. What he wants above all else is for the United States and Great Britain to jointly or severally guarantee France against future attacks by Germany. The experienced and wise statesman knows too much of the complications of European politics and the insincerity of European diplomacy to place any confidence in the league.

His doubts are based upon facts and conditions as he knows them best in years before the war and since the treaty of Versailles. France already is the protection guarantee of Great Britain and some 40 other nations that signed the league covenant. The principal feature of that covenant is the agreement of the signatory nations to guarantee that external aggression against any one member of the league will be resisted by all the other members. That France is not resistant to rely upon that covenant as a safeguard against another German assault, shows that Clemenceau and France, do not regard the league as a effective instrument for preserving member nations safe from aggression.

But France cannot and does not depend upon such assistance from the league because each of the leading members has demonstrated that they have no regard whatever for the obligations of the league covenant. Aware of this fact Clemenceau seeks the guarantee of a nation which if given he knows would be scrupulously kept.

Wisely recognizing in advance that many other nations would consider the league merely a scrap of paper, and refuse to be bound by its obligations when the test came the United States Senate resolutely refused to permit the United States to become a member. But to that action our country would today be bearing almost single-handed and alone the burden of an effort to establish and maintain the peace, not only of the Near East, but all of Europe and Asia.

The people of this country can never cease to be grateful that we have not yet reached the extreme of folly where it desires voluntarily or under compulsion of an unwritten pledge to take up the duties and responsibilities of nations but have thrown international morality to the winds.

Next to Christmas Day, Pay Day is the important day these days.

Of course the Coal Commission will presently explain, and to the entire satisfaction of coal consumers, why they have to pay too much for coal since too many coal mines have been opened.

A few more conferences of plenipotentiaries and France will again be as warm a friend of Great Britain as Ireland has been.

In demanding 'hush money' make-believe 'officers' will have to speak in whispers.

The 10 remaining Christmas shopping days will slip around before you know it, unless you get busy at once.

The wise Christmas buyers are close students of the advertising columns of The Courier these evenings and the wise buyer on the days following.

"Equality for Men"

Memphis Commercial-Appeal

It had to come. It was as inevitable as death that with equal rights for females established, there would be some males who would demand the establishment of equal responsibilities. And the latter demand seems fairly well started on the way to establishment through the action of a Cincinnati court that allowed a fitted male $1,500 damages in a suit he had brought for breach of promise.

Having established the right to heart balm settlements, are males now to insist upon similar rights to all men? That would seem to be the inevitable sequence. And must we face the dreadful possibility of criminal punishment for wives who desert their trustful and confiding husbands or the terrors of the whipping post for husband beaters? Or, should we say can we escape them?

Time to be careful. Reading News-Times. It is all to be knocked cold while making a drink to warm up.

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest

HIS SERVICE.

He would have said: I've never done a thing. When brains were handed out I wasn't there. Some fellows write and some are born to sing. And others climb in planes and ride the air.

God made me out of odds and ends, I guess. The leavings from a batch of clay. He used to look the genius for success by which the world might gain or be amused.

There wasn't any favoring of skill. Nearly which he could drop into the mold. I was the bit of pottery fashioned in the hands given to the old when he was old.

He couldn't write or paint or make a speech. Nothing he has done has ever brought him fame. He had no gifts the heights of life to reach. Yet he shall be remembered just the same.

His years were filled with kindly little deeds. He gave cheer and help and comfort and warmth. He was the service life as often needs. In little ways the rugged paths he smoothed.

He took the burdens from you with a smile. And call it nothing in his modest way. He thought no little of the joys he gave. He thought no little of the joys he gave.

Now that the earth has closed upon his grave. How many friends he had who miss him so. (Copyright 1922 by Edgar A. Guest)

ALL WRONG

The Mistake is Made by Many, Con-nelville Citizens.

Look for the cause of backache.
It be cured you must know the cause.

It is the weak kidneys you must set the kidneys working right.
Connelville resident tells you so.

Mrs. W. Ramago, 710 McCormick avenue, says: "I have found Doan's Kidney Pills to be a very good remedy. Several years ago I was troubled in spells with bad backaches. My back would pain constantly day and night and sharp, cutting pains would batter me when I stooped over. At such times, I could hardly straighten up. My kidneys were also in bad shape and acting poorly. I tried cas-ty and was troubled with headache and dizziness. The last time I had an attack I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills from Clarke's Drug Store and they cured me of this trouble and I give the credit to Doan's."

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

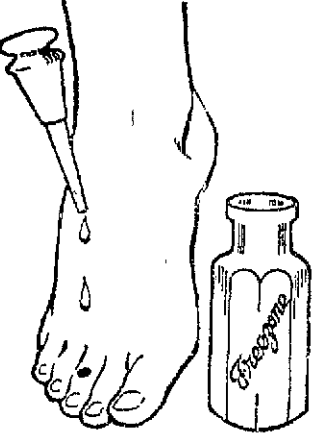

For a Busy Mother

My daughter straightens the living room table before she goes to school. She puts papers in a neat pile, magazines straight together, letters on the desk, and any articles that do not belong there she puts on the table in the dining room for me to look over. Then she straightens the couch pillows and puts chairs to rights. If any one drops in before I am through in the kitchen, the living room looks orderly, even though it is not yet cleaned.

Preliminary Estimates For Next Year's Budget Exceed 1922

The mayor said. He added that he did not want on the force a man who cannot read and write. Overcoats for the men are included this item amounting to $295.

A new fire truck is the large item in the estimate of Councilman Cypher for the department of public safety. The estimated cost is $8,700. The truck now in use was purchased 11 years ago. It has seen its day, the superintendent indicated. Increases in pay for the firemen also are provided. The chief to $175 a month, the assistant chief to $150 and the firemen to $135. They would be placed on par with the members of the police force.

In the department of streets estimate provision is made for a new motor truck. The one now in use is considered a constant liability. For a number of years new sewers were carried in the streets department estimate. Last year and again this year they were eliminated and will be charged to the improvement fund. Superintendent B. L. Berg insists that they cannot be properly charged to his section of the budget.

The chief increase in the estimate of the department of accounts and finance C. M. Stone, superintendent, is $500 to meet the larger commission of the city treasurer for collection of taxes, which will be larger because of increased valuation.

Carried in the accounts department is an item of $10,000 for borrowing purposes in emergency. It is rarely made use of. The actual amount of the estimate, therefore, is $7,625.

The bulk of the estimate of Councilman James Wardley for the department of parks and public affairs is made up of $5,000 for the Carnegie Free Library.

The budget will be further considered next Monday evening.

DIGNITY IN MODES

More Consideration Given Garments of Present Season.

Individual Selection / Rules as to Styles; Materials Are Gorgeous; Trimmings Very Elaborate.

Fashions never have been so indefinite and so contradictory as they are at the present time. Long and short, wide and narrow skirts are worn, advises a fashion authority in the New York Tribune. There are high necks and low necks, gowns with sleeves so long that they cover the hand, others with sleeves of elbow length and still others that are sleeveless. So for the time being fashion resolves itself into a matter of individual selection.

Designers, in their endeavor to popularize something new, have been working against great odds. Women apparently are well satisfied with the type of clothes that they have been wearing for several seasons past. But despite all this confusion a few definite themes run through the fashions of the present season. One is the preponderance of models more mature in appearance; that is, gowns and wraps designed for the woman rather than the young girl. Clothes are more dignified than they have been for many years. Materials are more gorgeous and trimmings are very elaborate.

Among the most noteworthy evening gowns are the white dresses ornamented with beads. Sometimes they are embroidered in tiny pearls in designs of bands running around the skirt. What might be known as chandelier embroidery also is used. This is done in crystal beads with crystal pendants hanging from the motifs. Embroidery such as this is extremely effective on black.

Charmeuse is an exquisite dress in all black developed from panne velvet and has a very open pattern of crocheted lace which looks almost like a Dinner Dress of Black Panné Velvet and Black Lace.

She passementerie draped about the skirt. There is a radiant girle of white stones and a low wide line, which hangs at the front in Egyptian panel style.

WAYS OF FASHIONING BELTS

Varie Furriers Stitch, Twist and Cut For into All Sorts of Shapes—Seam Together.

Mantles in fur are more voluminous and more extravagant in cut than last season. For evening the most attention-arresting linings are used in gorgeous metal and printed effects. Velvet brocade, chignon, veils have bright satin linings in some of the more elaborate models, the satin being in a vivid tone and the chignon brocade usually in a fur tone—that is, brown. This makes a very soft and beautiful lining. Metal brocades with brilliant colors in the pattern are frequently used for lining evening mantles. Furine mantles are lined with black and silver brocade.

The Paris furrier has seemingly surmounted all obstacles in the working of belts. Stitches, twists and cuts them into all sorts of shapes, then seams them together to form mosaic patterns—squares, diamond shapes, round and curving. There are no straight and horizontal stripes; there are undulating stripes and festoon stripes worked out perfectly in fur. Mole-skin and seal are often worked in what is called the shell pattern; that is, cut into bits and sewn together to simulate the markings of the tortoise.

Unusual Frock.

A blue serge frock, cut on delightfully girlish lines, with the waistline at the normal place, is trimmed only with diamond-shaped medallions of black silk and a dash of American Beauty colored georgette.

Khaki for Children.

Khaki is surprisingly developed in little costume suits for children. Being a practical material it has been trimmed with gay-colored braids and kept from having any of the drabness often prevalent in the use of khaki. The models are attractive and very suitable for hard wear.

To Prevent Bagging.

To keep one-piece dresses from sagging at the side seams, pin them onto the clothesline by the hem of the center front and the center back.

FOR THE BUSINESS WOMAN

Dark brown duvettine three-piece suit, with gold-stitched velvet hat to match, affords suitable attire for the business woman.

TO AID THE PORTLY WOMEN

Hints for Slenderizing Fashions to Suit Those Overburdened With Avoirdupois

Why is it there, or, or seem to be so many fat women these days? It is certainly not because they are not given every consideration by designers and that shops cannot give them an assortment of well-cut garments which will minimize rather than draw attention to their bulk. One hears of diets everywhere, and the only conclusion to come to is that the fattening-up process is more or less universal.

A useful method of combining the new features of the mode with suitability for the large figure is fortunately displayed in two and three piece suits.

A careful selection has been made of those lines, colors and trims which will either convey or aid in conveying illusory slenderness, while every feature, however smart, which would tend to give or exaggerate the impression of size is carefully avoided. For example, the flat-back and the flat-front effect is not used to any considerable extent. The models usually show a slight fullness over the hip, which is stitched down under a narrow hip belt inserted in the manner of a yoke or applied in the usual fashion. One-sided effects are particularly favored on one-piece suits, and the double-side ornament is also an oft-repeated feature.

A slight drape is permissible, although the usual plan is to cut the fabric so that it will fall in straight lines and give the impression of a drape. Longer side panels are used frequently, either inserted into the body of the garment or hanging loosely over an underskirt.—Washington Post.

THE NEW COSTUMES OF SATIN

Popular Material Holds Sway Among the Best Sellers—Twills for School Wear.

Satins which have not been observed to a conspicuous degree in other lines for this season are said to be among the best selling numbers at present. For parties the changeable taffeta, georgette and velvet are chosen. Bangles, plaiting and metallic ribbons are favored trims on the high colored or pastel georgette frocks. Slightly-fitted basque effects and full skirts are noted on the more bouffant taffeta modes. Voilets for afternoon dress wear for the flapper and little girl are in dark shades for the most part, with embroidery in brighter tones as decoration. Gay-colored leather is applied with heavy embroidery stitches in a smart frock of black velvet.

Polart twills are in demand for school wear, and some Sassura, the novelty woolen. Braids and bands and additions of contrasting colored crepe de chine are means of trimming the polart twills for practical wear. Velvet is expected to be added in greater proportion in the line, in order to anticipate a demand that is already being felt. The party dress is of increasing interest to the buyer as the season goes, it is said, the numbers being in good demand now.

CHRISTMAS.

The Day of Days. Only Two Weeks Away.

Work is more plentiful at good wages, and judging by the crowds in the shopping districts, Connelleville is going to have a right Merry Christmas, but poor Papa, as usual, is at a loss what to give. Here's a tip. Step into the old, reliable First National Bank and open Savings Accounts for the children. Nothing else you could select will please them more or be of such far-reaching benefit. PLAN MEMORIAL TO BUFFALO BILL

Visitors Asked to Bring Stone to His Grave.

TO ERECT EQUESTRIAN STATUE

Huge Pyramid to Be Raised From Stones Supplied by the 350,000 Annual Visitors. This to Be Surmounted by Statue Something Like the Waterloo Monument. With the Belgian Lion on Top—Museum Houses Interesting Relics of Scout's Life.

A monument to Buffalo Bill in the form of a huge pyramid built of stones brought by visitors to his grave, is being planned by the Cody Memorial Association. Buffalo Bill is buried on the summit of Lookout mountain in Colorado, the main range of the Rocky mountains behind him and Denver and the plains before him. His grave is marked by a rock built stupa, over which a gnarled pine, itself a pioneer, stands sentinel.

It is proposed to build some sort of base or containing wall of circular shape near the grave and to request that each pilgrim to this shrine of the early West shall place here a stone to the memory of Colonel Cody. That the desire to leave some such token is strong is shown by the numbers of hairpins and small coins thrown at the grave spot, the grave itself. Signs will be placed on all the roads and trails leading to Lookout mountain explaining the monument and the following verse has been suggested as a motto:

"As you pass along the stony trails That lead to the top of the hill Pick up a rock and place it on The grave of Buffalo Bill."

Plan Equestrian Statue

States and organizations will probably see if engraved stones to place in the face of the pyramid and when it reaches sufficient height it will be surmounted by an equestrian statue of Buffalo Bill, the whole to give something of the effect of the Waterloo monument with the Belgian lion on top.

This will not be the first memorial to the famous scout for the city of Denver has already erected a museum near the grave to house his trophies. This building, built of pine logs and covered with shingles, is known as Pahaska Teepee after the name of the Sioux Indians. In it are various relics such as the scalp of Yellow Hand the Sioux chief killed by Buffalo Bill after the Custer massacre. Buffalo Bill's saddles and bridles, Lucetta Borgia the girl with which he shot 4,000 buffalo in one year, gifts from Indian chieftains and from European potentates who were entertained by the Wild West show abroad.

The building is operated as a concession by Johnny Baker, the foster son of Colonel Cody, and producing manager of the show now selling memorabilia and souvenirs to the thousands of visitors. Every Sunday 150,000 persons visit the museum in the course of the summer.

Pike's Peak Gold Seeker

Buffalo Bill was among the gold seekers in the "Pikes Peak or Bust" gold rush. He and a companion started out a raft to drift down the Pike river but in midstream the raft was overturned and all their provisions were lost. It was in 1897 when Buffalo Bill was only twenty years of age that he earned his name. He had a contract to furnish meat for the soldiers on the Kansas Pacific railroad and shot 4,280 buffaloes in less than eighteen months. The soldiers got so tired of buffalo meat that they wrote to him, when they saw him coming, "Here comes old Buffalo Bill! He grew proud of this sobriquet until he learned that another man, Comstock, was also known as Buffalo Bill. He challenged him to shoot a match in which the name would be awarded to whoever shot the most buffaloes in one day. Cody won the match, 80 to 45, and became the only Buffalo Bill.

He went into government service in 1898 during the Indian campaign and was made chief of scouts and guide for the Fifth cavalry by Gen. Fred Sherman. He distinguished himself by being the only scout to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor. It was in the Sioux war in 1876 that he killed Chief Yellow Hand. "He was a big chief among your people," said a big chief. "We will fight." Cody killed Yellow Hand and took his scalp, the only one he ever confessed to taking.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily made and only made at home. But it beats it all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save the trouble of the money usually spent for cough preparations by using the well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives a most reliable remedy usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way it tastes good, keeps perfectly and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and in its concentrated compound of Kertium Forsyae pine extract known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes. Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guarantee to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. GULBRANSEN The Player-Piano

The Truthful Trade-Mark of the Gulbransen

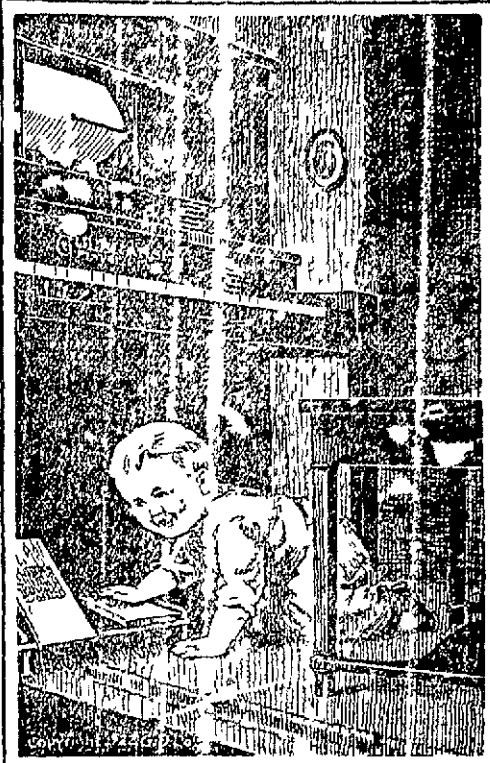

A baby's hand on a peg of the Gulbransen causes it to play. The trade-mark tells a truthful story.

It is the exclusive Gulbransen feature—the fine craftsmanship—the patented design—that make "easy to play" a fact.

Naturally the results you obtain on the Gulbransen are far above the average. The instrument is flexible, responsive, simple. Even a novice, with the aid of Gulbransen Instruction Rolls—also an exclusive idea—quickly learns to play well.

When buying a Gulbransen, you are protected as to price. Mark this: no matter in what town or from what dealer you buy a Gulbransen, the price paid will be ing to the style selected. The retail selling figure is branded in the back of every Gulbransen—the factory. Its price is established—its value unquestioned.

The baby trade-mark stands for real music, easily played. It appears on more player-pianos each year than any other trade-mark or name. It is the emblem of Gulbransen ideals, ability, experience and policies.

The BLIND MAN'S EYES

BY WILLIAM MACHARG—EDWIN BALMER
Illustrations by R.H. Livingstone

"Then why can't you not?" She turned to him frankly; he gazed at her a moment and then looked away and shook his head. Did she know all of what was known even under her father's roof; and if she knew all, would she then loathe or defend it? A motor sped near, halted and then sped on again; Eaton, looking up, saw it was a runabout with Avery alone in it; evidently, riding down the road, Avery had halted to protest, then thought better of it and gone on. But other motors passed now with people who spoke to Harriet and who stopped to inquire for her father's name.

"Your father does not seem to be one of the great men without honor in his own neighborhood," Eaton said

"Every One Who Knows Father Likes and Admires Him!" She rejoiced, to her after one of these had halted and gone on.

"Everyone who knows Father likes and admires him!" she rejoiced. "I don't mean exactly that," Eaton went on. "They must trust him too, in an extraordinary way. His associates must place most complete confidence in him when they leave to him the adjustment of matters such as I understand they do. He tells them what is just and they abide by his decision."

Harriet shook her head. "No; it isn't quite that," she said.

"What then?" "You are correct in saying that men of the most opposite sorts—and most irreconcilable to each other—constantly place their fate in Father's hands; and when he tells them what they must do, they abide by his decision. But he doesn't decide for them what is just."

"I don't understand. What does he tell them, then?"

"He tells them what would be the outcome if they fought, who would win, and who would lose and by how much. And they believe him and abide by his decision without fighting; for he knows, and they know, that he knows and is absolutely honest."

Eaton was silent for a moment as they walked along. "How can he come to his decision?" he asked at last.

"How?" "I mean, much of the material presented to him must be documentary." "Much of it is."

"Then someone must read it to him."

"Of course."

Eaton started to speak—then refrained.

"What were you going to say?" she questioned.

"That the person—or persons—who reads the documents to him must occupy an extremely delicate position."

"He does. In fact, I think that position is Father's own nightmare."

"Nightmare?"

"The person he trusts must not only be absolutely discreet but absolutely honest."

"I should think so. If anyone in that position wanted to use the information brought to your father, he could make himself millions overnight, undoubtedly, and ruin other men."

"And kill Father too," the girl added quietly. "Yes," she said as Eaton looked at her. "Father puts nothing above his trust. If that trust were betrayed—whether or not Father were in any way to blame for it—I think it would kill him."

"So you are the one who is in that position."

"Yes; that is, I have been."

"You mean there is another now; that is, of course, Mr. Avery?"

"Yes; here at this house Mr. Avery and I, and Mr. Avery at the office. Before Mr. Avery came, I was the only one who helped here at the house."

"Then was that?"

"When Mr. Avery came? About five years ago. Father had an immense amount of work at that time. Business conditions were very much unsettled. There was trouble at that time between some of the big eastern and big western men, and at the same time the government was prosecuting the trusts. Nobody knew what the outcome of it all would be; many of the biggest men who consulted Father were like men groping in the dark. I don't suppose you would remember the time by what I say; but you would remember it, as nearly everybody else does by this: it was the time of the murder of Mr. Eaton."

"Yes; I remember that," said Eaton. "And Mr. Avery came to you at that time?"

"Yes; just at that time I was thrown from my horse, and could not do as much as I had been doing, so Mr. Avery was sent to Father."

"Then Mr. Avery was a partner in the murder of Mr. Eaton?"

"No; Mr. Avery came just afterward. I was reading to him at that time."

"The papers must have been a good deal for a girl of eighteen."

"At that time, you mean? They were; but Father dared trust no one else."

"Mr. Avery handles those matters now for your father?"

"The continuation of what was going on then? Yes; he took them up at the time, I was hurt and so has kept on looking after them; for there has been plenty for me to do without that; and those things have all been more or less settled now. They have worked themselves out as things do, though they seemed almost unsolvable at the time. One thing that helped in their solution was that Father was able, at that time, to turn what was just, as well as what was able."

"You mean that in the final settlement of them no one entered?"

"No one, I think—except, of course, poor Mr. Eaton; and that was a private matter and never came in any direct way with the question at issue. Why do you ask all this, Mr. Eaton?"

"I was merely interested in you—in what your work has been with your father, and what it is," he answered, quietly.

"They had been following the edge of the road, she along a path worn in the turf, he on the edge of the road itself and nearer to the tracks of the motors. Suddenly she cried out and clutched at him. As they had stopped, she had heard the sound of a motor approaching them, rapidly from behind. Except that this car seemed speeding faster than the others, she had paid no attention and had not turned. Instantaneously, as she had cried out and pulled upon him, she had realized that this car was not passing; it was directly behind and almost upon him. She felt him spring to the side as quickly as he could; but her cry and pull upon him were almost too late; as he leaped, the car struck the blow was glancing, not direct, and he was off his feet and in motion when the wheel struck; but the car hurled him aside and rolled him over and over."

As she rushed to Eaton, the two men, who had been seated in the car, turned their heads and looked back, but without checking its speed or swerving, the car dashed on and disappeared down the roadway.

She bent over Eaton and took hold of him. He struggled to his feet and, dazed, tottered so that she supported him. As she realized that he was not greatly hurt, she stared with horror at the turn in the road where the car had disappeared.

"Why, he tried to run you down!" He meant to! He tried to hurt you!" she cried.

"No," Eaton denied. "Oh, no, I don't think so. It must have been an accident. He was—frightened when he saw what he had done."

"It wasn't at all like an accident!" she persisted. "It couldn't have been an accident there and coming up from behind the way he did! No; he meant to do it! Did you see who was in the car—who was driving?"

He turned to her quickly. "Who?" he demanded.

"One of the people who was on the train! The morning Father was hurt. Don't you remember—a little man, nervous, but very strong; a man almost like an ape?"

He shuddered and then controlled himself. "Yes, I remember a fellow the conductor tried to sea in opposite."

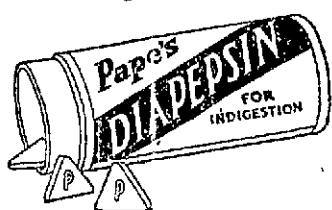

"This was the same man?"

Eaton shook his head. "That could hardly be; I think you must be mistaken."

"I am not mistaken; it was that man!"

"Still, I think you must be," he again denied.

She stared at him. "Perhaps I was," she agreed; but she knew she had not been. "I am glad whoever it was, he didn't injure you. You are all right, aren't you?"

"Quite," he answered. "Please don't trouble about it, Miss Eaton."

They walked back rather silently, she appreciating how passionately she had expressed herself for him, and he quiet because of this and other thoughts.

They found the old Avery in front of the house looking for him as they came up. Eaton succeeded in walking without tripping; but he could not conceal the marks on his clothes.

"Harriet, I've just come from your father; he wants you to go to him at once. Avery directed. 'Good morning, Eaton. What happened?'"

"Car accident," Eaton answered. "Got rather in the way of a motor and was knocked over for it."

Harriet did not correct him to Avery. She went up to her father, she was still trembling, still sick with horror at what she had seen—she attempted to kill one walking at her side. She stood outside her father's door to compose herself, then she went in.

The blind man was propped up on his bed with pillows in almost a sitting position; the nurse was with him.

"What did you say, Father?" Harriet asked.

He recognized her step and had been about to speak to her; but at the sound of her voice he stopped the words on his lips and charged them into a direction for the nurse to leave the room.

He waited until the nurse had left and closed the door behind her. Harriet saw that in his familiarity with her tones and every inflection of her voice, he had sensed already that something unusual had occurred; she repeated, however, her question as to what he wanted.

"That does not matter now, Harriet. Where have you been?"

"I have been talking with Mr. Eaton."

"What happened?"

"She hesitated. Mr. Eaton was almost run down by a motorcar."

"Ah! An accident?"

"Yes. He was hurt, but not badly. I called to him and pulled him—he jumped away in time."

"To kill him, Harriet? How do you know?"

She caught herself. "I—I don't know, Father. He certainly meant to injure Mr. Eaton. When I said kill him, I was telling only what I thought."

"That is better. I think so too."

"That he meant to kill Mr. Eaton?"

"Yes."

Coker-Brownsville Game Is Practically Assured; Sign Contracts Tonight

Captains White and Long
Come to Terms; Fans Pleased.

ELIGIBLES DETERMINED

The Connellsville Tornadoes and the Brownsville Independents will clash Saturday afternoon in the second annual championship game for the titular honors of Fayette county.

The arrangements for the game were practically completed last night at a meeting between Billy Long and Charles White, captains of Brownsville and Connellsville, respectively.

On his return from Brownsville, White said the game would be played there Saturday afternoon. Final arrangements will be completed this evening when he meets Long at the town where lists of eligible players will be submitted and contracts signed.

Neither team will be permitted to use a player who has not participated in at least two games. Violation of the clause will result in a penalty of $300.

Neutral officials will be secured, the Pittsburg Post to name them and neither team will know their names until the day of the game.

Now that the much-talked-of contest is apparently assured, fans are already making plans for attending. In the three cities of the county, Connellsville, Uniontown and Brownsville, the coming game is the chief topic of discussion in sporting circles. Interest is rapidly coming to fever heat and a bumper crowd is anticipated.

Special details of police will be necessary to handle the crowds. The teams have made arrangements to split the proceeds 50-50 and next year the game will be played in this city, with no preliminary arguments.

With the decisive defeat handed the Panthers Saturday following the defeat of Charleston previously, defeat in the strength of the locals is picking up and the Tornadoes are once more being looked to as conquerors of the Silver Town aggregation.

Girls at the High School are getting their share of basketball. A variety five is being drilled by Miss Anne Mellon, coach, and in addition to these each class is represented by a quintet.

The Unity Fraternity took another step forward in organizing its basketball team at a meeting last night. Some new faces will be on the list this season, and there will be keen rivalry for positions.

HIGH SCHOOL FLOOR SEASON TO OPEN ON THURSDAY EVENING

The Connellsville High School basketball team will begin its preliminary season here Thursday evening when the Mount Pleasant borough schools team will be played. The same team was the first opponent of the Cokers last year.

On Friday evening there will be no game because of the entertainment at the auditorium, and on Saturday evening "The Perry Township High quintet will be here for a clash.

Perry expects to cop the championship in the Fayette County Interscholastic Athletic Association and is very desirous of making a good showing against the locals.

Coach Wise is working his candidates hard but the boys are holding up well. He has had a few sprains, but the outfit is not yet ready to show its real form.

PRACTICES IN BUSH LEAGUES

Manager More Bent on Winning Games
by Trickery Than Developing Young Players.

The minor leagues produced few good ball players the last summer—few good ones that the big leagues wanted. A critic points out that in many of the minors the former big leaguers who act as managers are more interested in winning games by anything they can get away with than in polishing up some diamond in the rough who would make good in the majors. For instance, pitchers in the smaller minors adopt certain illegal motions and get away with them. These same men in the big leagues are required to pitch legally, which is one reason they do not show with the same éclat as when they were in the bushes.

Over 300 soccer teams of England are competing in preliminary round games for the famous cup. Losers are eliminated until two qualify for the final next April. SUPER-POWER PLANS GROWING Survey Contemplates the Elimination of Waste.

MANY STATES CO-OPERATING

Scope of Work Includes Vast Project to Save Losses in Mining and Moving Coal and Conservation of Energy—Millions of Potential Water Horse Power in New York Alone Remains to Be Developed—Would Save Use of $400,000,000 Railway Equipment.

Under the leadership of Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, and with the co-operation of eminent electrical engineers and the governors of northeastern states the super-power survey plans proceed toward their objectives.

The utilization of natural water power sites in one co-ordinated electric energy transmission project in the States from Canada to Virginia and from the Atlantic coast inland to the Pennsylvania and West Virginia areas.

The turning of coal at the mouth of the mine into electric energy by means of transmitting plants.

The combining of the whole into one vast enterprise to save the costs and losses now involved in transporting coal and to utilize large potential water horse powers now going to waste.

"The idea back of the super-power survey," Mr. Hoover says, "is to eliminate waste now incidental to the obtaining of energy for lighting, heating and power with other social values to be derived therefrom."

Would Save Many Millions. Charles F. Steinmetz, chief consultant, General Electric company, Schenectady, N. Y., takes New York state as an example in respect of these plans.

"This state," Doctor Steinmetz said, "has 5,338,000 potential water horse power of which only 1,333,000 has been developed. If the whole were brought into use it would save the use of $400,000,000 of railway equipment now necessary to bring the coal from the mines to the cities of this state. Another $140,000,000 would be saved by cheaper light and power."

Developed, these water powers would enable the shutting down of every steam locomotive and steam engine in the state. It would bring us into the electric age, which will be the age of clean, sanitary and smokeless towns and cities."

In recent discussions of the power situation Governor Miller has indicated the efforts to perfect the utilization of these additional potential power sites. "The foundation has been laid," Governor Miller said at Lockport, N. Y., "for the development of the vast water power resources of the state under private initiative, but under the efficient control of the state to insure full protection to the people in distribution and rates. A million of potential horse power on the interior streams and two to three millions on the boundary streams means, if developed, the saving of thirty to forty million tons of coal annually in New York state."

Cuts Out Drudgery. "It means light, heat and power for general use, for the city dweller, the village dweller and the farm dweller. It means cheaper heat, light and power. It means all of the great modern conveniences. It means the elimination of drudgery for the housewife and better methods of living for all classes wherever they reside."

When the potential water powers of other northeastern states within the scope of the super-power survey plans are included, the whole aggregates from ten to fifteen millions of horse power, and, if utilized the effects would be to release proportional railway equipment for other traffic uses.

It means a vast lessening of the traffic congestion now choking so many terminals.

These benefits would accrue in very large measure to the Port of New York district into and out from which annually about 120,000,000 tons of freight move, of which more than 31 per cent is fuel which must be kept moving all the time regardless of the traffic needs otherwise. When, therefore, the water power sites be developed and the additional economy wrought of turning coal into electric energy at the mines, the conditions of living and commerce and industry will have received benefits scarcely conceived as possible at this time by the people—John Lathrop in the New York Herald.

ROMANCE OF LONDON GUILDS

Ancient Trade Companies of the British Metropolis That Roll in Wealth.

How many people know what a "fletcher" is? The fletcher is one of the literary companies of the city of London, and the name means an arrow maker, London T. Dits explains.

Some names of the city companies, such as the fletcher, bankers, apothecaries, joiners and musicians, are easily recognizable, but what does a conservator do, and a foriner, and an upholster? The first is a cobbler, the second a bricklayer and the third an upholsterer.

Among the most curious of the companies is the patternmakers. The pattern was a contraption to fit on the foot like a double shoe, which lifted the pedestrian a few inches from the dirt and 50th of the street.

There are a number of "great" London companies. In their correct order they are the mercers, grocers, drapers, fishmongers, goldsmiths, skinner, mercer, tailors, haberdashers, millers, ironmongers, vintners and cloth workers.

The wealth of some of these city guilds is enormous. A parliamentary commission which sat more than forty years ago stated that the rateable value of their splendid halls was about $55,000, and this figure has been almost doubled during recent years. If their treasures came under the auctioneer's hammer, they would realize an incredible sum.

The richest of the companies is the mercers, with an annual income of $111,000, followed by drapers $784,000; skinner, $66,000; clothworkers, $62,000; goldsmiths and haberdashers, $58,000 each, fishmongers and merchant tailors, $50,000 each, and so on.

ALL CLOUDS MADE OF DUST

That and Not Water Is Found to Be the Predominant Element in Them.

What do you think is the predominant element of the great clouds which float high above our heads in the sky? Water? No, dust, the little motes that may be dancing in any sunbeam. Without dust there can be no clouds, and without clouds rain cannot fall.

Most of England's rain comes from the hot seas on the coast of America. Here water rises into the air in the form of steam, whose tiny particles adhere to the little dust-specks, or motes of which the atmosphere is full. If it was not for the motes the steam would simply fall back again at evening time when the temperature dropped. But as it is, each mote attracts a certain number of vapor particles, and retains them. In this way great clouds are formed which are carried eastward over the seas by the wind.

So long as there is no great fall in the temperature they will continue to float; for water-vapor is lighter than air and will not sink in it; but should the temperature be reduced rapidly, the particles of vapor begin to condense into drops of water, far heavier than air. The motes can no longer sustain their burden and rain begins to fall.
